Article 1

These Regulations are established under the relevant rules to govern doctoral studies at the Institute.

Article 2

Within one month of admission (by October 31 or March 31), doctoral students must complete the online academic research ethics course and pass its assessment before they may formally begin writing their dissertation.

Article 3

Doctoral students must complete 4 required credits:

Seminar (I): 1 credit.

Seminar (II): 1 credit.

Seminar (III): 1 credit.

Seminar (IV): 1 credit.

Doctoral electives are grouped into three areas. The minimum elective credits for each area are:

Environment: 6 credits.

Education: 6 credits.

Research: 6 credits.

Total elective credits required: 18.

Article 4

Doctoral students must complete at least 22 credits to graduate.

Students may apply to enroll in the teacher education program only after passing the doctoral qualifying examination.

Article 5

Application for selection of a dissertation advisor:

1. Doctoral students must submit the Application for Selection of a Dissertation Advisor by the end of their second semester after admission. At least one advisor must be a full-time faculty member of the Institute at the rank of associate professor or above. If needed, one additional full-time or part-time faculty member from the Institute, or a faculty member from another department or university, may serve as co-advisor.

2. If a change of advisor is necessary for exceptional reasons, both the outgoing and incoming advisors must sign their consent. The signed consent must be submitted to the Institute Director for the record. If necessary, the Director may convene an Institute Affairs Meeting to help resolve the matter.

Article 6

The minimum and maximum credit loads per semester for doctoral students are governed by the Academic Regulations of National Taiwan Normal University.

Article 7

Doctoral students must submit a doctoral course plan before the end of the first semester's add/drop period and present their dissertation proposal within the Institute by the end of their second semester. They must apply for the doctoral qualifying examination in their fourth semester after admission. Students who do not pass may take a make-up examination the following semester. Students who fail the make-up examination will be dismissed. Students must complete their dissertation proposal oral examination by the end of the semester following the semester in which they pass the doctoral qualifying examination.

Students may apply for the doctoral qualifying examination only after completing the internal dissertation proposal presentation. They may apply for the doctoral dissertation proposal oral examination only after passing the doctoral qualifying examination. They may apply for the doctoral degree examination only after passing the doctoral dissertation proposal oral examination.

Separate rules govern the doctoral qualifying examination and the doctoral dissertation proposal oral examination.

Article 8

The doctoral qualifying examination covers "Foundational Knowledge" and "Research Development."

Article 9

Doctoral students must pass the degree examination and publish at least two scholarly works during their enrollment in order to graduate. Graduates of the doctoral program are awarded the degree of Doctor of Philosophy (Ph.D.).

These works must be published as first author or corresponding author in the journals listed in Appendix Table 1. At least one work must appear in a Category A journal.

The degree examination is conducted in accordance with the University's Regulations for Degree Conferral and Graduate Degree Examinations. All participants (the doctoral student, dissertation advisor, and oral examination committee members) must meet at the same time and location.

Article 10

Applicants must submit the following documents with their degree examination application. Applications missing any required document will not be accepted.

1. A dissertation originality report from the online plagiarism detection system. The similarity score, after excluding the student's own previously published works, references, and direct quotations, must not exceed 15%.

2. A signed undertaking for the dissertation examination application.

3. Evidence of publication meeting the requirements of Article 9, including proof of acceptance for publication from the journal.

Items 1 and 2 apply to doctoral students applying for the degree examination from the first semester of Academic Year 105 (ROC) onward.

Item 3 applies to doctoral students who pass the doctoral qualifying examination after the first semester of Academic Year 105 (ROC).

Article 11

These Regulations shall be approved by the Institute Affairs Meeting and the relevant College meetings, submitted to the Academic Affairs Meeting for deliberation, and then promulgated for implementation. The same procedure applies to amendments.
